THE RULES ARE RELAXED

VICTORIA (CP) — The provincial government has relaxed its stringent environment protection regulations to permit the multi-billion dollar northeast coal development to proceed on schedule, letters made public Wednesday show.

Denison Mines Ltd. and Teck Corp. have signed agreements with Japanese steel interests to ship 7.7 million tonnes of coal annually over a 15-year period, beginning in 1983.

However, Denison's stage two environmental impact report — necessary before any water or pollution control permits can be issued and over-all approval of the project given — was rejected by the government's coal guidelines steering committee in January.

Teck has not even submitted its stage two report.

In a letter to Denison dated Feb. 3 and released Wednesday, Environment Minister Stephen Rogers said that although major deficiencies were found in the company's stage two report for the Quintette coal project, some permits may be issued before all those deficiencies are corrected.

Rogers said a fully upgraded stage two submission will still be required, but if "details have been finalized to the satisfaction of permitting agencies, permits can be issued in advance... if this is necessary to keep on schedule."

The first coal is supposed to be delivered to the Japanese in late 1983.

"The decision to overlap stage two and stage three in this manner should provide the flexibility required in the current situation," the minister said.

Rogers criticized Denison for its slowness in preparing the environmental studies.

"Very complex and time-consuming negotiations will now be needed before some of the required permits can be issued," he said. "Ideally, these negotiations should have been well advanced at this stage."

The company was also criticized by the steering committee in its rejection of the stage two submission.

New coal port can't be ready by '83 deadline

PRINCE RUPERT, B.C. (CP) — The chairman of the Prince Rupert Port Authority says he doubts export facilities in this northern B.C. coastal community will be ready by the 1983 deadline to begin shipping northeast B.C. coal to Japan.

The deadline contained in the 15-year deal to export 7.7 million tonnes of metallurgical coal annually is more "optimistic than realistic," Joe Scott said in an interview.

Scott said shippers face a penalty if the coal can't be shipped out by the fall of 1983 from the Ridley Island coal terminal, but he doesn't know what that penalty will be.

The National Harbors Board owns the land on which the coal terminal is to be built and it has called for submissions from companies interested in operating and building the coal-loading facility.

Services to the site will be provided under an agreement involving the City of Prince Rupert, the harbors board and the province.

Companies wanting to build and operate the facility have until the end of March to file their proposals.

Scott said a committee then will reduce the list of applicants to a short list and interview final candidates.

He said once the successful terminal operator is picked, "it could take up to 30 months" before facilities are ready for use.

Scott said the board and the provincial government have had a lengthy battle over development of Ridley Island and who will spend what.

The harbors board refused to have provincial observers on the Ridley Island co-ordination committee, and conflicts continued to exist until the recent agreement in principle was signed between a consortium of Japanese buyers and Canadian coal companies, he said.

Ridley Island also is the site for a proposed grain terminal, and future developments include the possibility of a bulk loading facility.

Scott said he's had "15 to 20 serious inquiries in the past six months about developments on Ridley Island."

'We'll declare war on province' — TWU

VANCOUVER (CP) — Striking telephone workers won't settle for anything less than conciliator Ed Peck's report when the new federal mediator appointed Wednesday enters their long-standing dispute with B.C. Telephone Co., union officials said Wednesday.

"We'll declare war on this province," said Wolf Tietbohl, the Telecommunications Workers' Union northern strike coordinator.

"We'll tear this province apart from corner to corner before we accept anything less than Peck's report. All we're asking for is a signed contract."

Last fall the 11,000-member union accepted the Peck report calling for a two-year contract retroactive to Jan. 1, 1980 which would raise a journeyman lineman's rate to $13.75 an hour by July 1 from the current $11.15.

It was rejected by the company which presented a counter-proposal last month for a one-time, $1,400 payment prorated for time worked in 1980. The company also offered a two-year contract that would raise the lineman's wages to $15.52 an hour by Jan. 1, 1982.

Union vice-president George Yawrenko said the company's latest offer is less than a previous offer and is seen by the union to be inferior to Peck's report.

Federal Labor Minister Gerald Regan appointed William Kelly, senior assistant deputy minister, Wednesday to mediate

Dust to dust and dust to dust

District of Terrace public works drivers like Bev Cossett (below) are usually driving snowplows, sand trucks or salt trucks at this time of year but the municipality decided to do a little spring cleaning before the snow comes again. The trouble is that the street sweeper (above) usually uses water to keep the dust down as it collects the dirt. The temperature outside is cold enough to freeze water so Cossett would have had to eat his own dust if it were not for the mask.

Bus boy, 23, held in fatal casino fire

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — A 23-year-old busboy who told police he turned in the alarm on the Las Vegas Hilton fire has been booked on eight counts of murder in the blaze, which sent a column of flame roaring up the side of the largest hotel in the United States.

Homicide detectives said Wednesday night they have arrested Philip Bruce Cline after the room-service busboy made "inconsistent statements" about his role in the biggest of the four fires deliberately set in the hotel Tuesday night.

The blaze — the second large and deadly hotel fire in Las Vegas in three months — killed eight people and injured 198.

Hospitals had said that 242 people were hurt, but officials later said that figure was incorrect.

Cline told the San Diego Evening Tribune before his arrest that he tried to put out the fire on the eighth floor with water carried in a trash can. When that failed, Cline said he ran down the hall, knocking on doors to warn guests.

The busboy also was booked on one count of arson. Officials had no explanation immediately for the three other fires.

Formal charges will be filed at an arraignment, which officials said will take place before the end of the week.

In the aftermath of the blaze, which Fire Chief Roy Parrish termed "definitely arson," scorch marks scarred the side of the Hilton's east tower, where flames burst from eighth-floor windows and shot to the top of the 30-storey building.

Guests who fled rooms in the east wing, most severely damaged in the blaze, were being escorted in today to reclaim abandoned suitcases and other belongings.

Hilton officials estimated the damage at $10 million but said the hotel could be reopened in a week because about 1,900 of the 2,783 rooms were undamaged by the fire. The first-floor casino was unscathed. The other rooms were damaged, mostly by smoke.

More than 4,000 people fled the building during the fire, including 110 who were plucked from the roof by helicopters. Among the guests overcome by smoke was singer Natalie Cole, who performed at the hotel Monday.

Deputy Chief Eric Cooper said Cline "had given an initial statement last night (Tuesday) and another statement today (Wednesday) and there were inconsistencies."

One of eight people questioned at the scene of the blaze, Cline "stated he was the first one to discover the fire," Cooper said.

"We Satisfy Tummy & Tank 365 DAYS A YEAR"

Queen Victoria was aghast when she came to British Columbia with that "nice young man", Sir Charles Dilke, to see why England had colonized the wilderness of the Terrace area and given us the British North America Act, after hearing rumours of protests from Ottawa recently. "We were not amused," said the Queen. They will appear together again at the R.E.M. Lee Theatre Saturday at 8 p.m. in Bananaswami's Amazing Sideshow.

Main theme is scandalous

The scandalous life of Victorian liberationist Sir Charles Dilke, who saw the institution of marriage as another form of white man's burden, is the theme of Bananaswami's Amazing Sideshow, written by and starring Michael Asti-Rose.

"Sir Charles was the great-grandfather of my father. He was the youngest member of the Liberal cabinet under Gladstone and at age 26 he went around the world and wrote one of the 10 best classics of the British Empire about his travels.

"He was 100 years ahead of his time... in 1885 he was driving a 1925 convertible... he saw a lot of injustice in the Empire, and the conditions that he saw are still a big part of our world as some of these countries throw off the yoke of imperialism," says Asti-Rose.

Sex is the main theme of the play, however, since Sir Charles saw marriage as the symbol of the same power that flourished throughout the Empire. "Love becomes imprisoned by marriage and the same tyranny that was in the colonies was also in people's homes," says Asti-Rose about his ancestor.

The 20 scenes are fast paced as Asti-Rose plays the characters of Bananaswami, butler and man servant to Sir Charles; Sir Charles; Walter Witherspoon, a cockney huckster; Oscar Wilde, the playwright; Lord Chief Justice and Lord Kitchener.

During this one-man sideshow Bananaswami tells of his love of his master, Sir Charles, but he is also torn by his love for India and his banana plantation. Asti-Rose was raised in India where his parents were missionaries.

Bananaswami teaches people how to meditate and how to cook chappati, a round, flat bread eaten as a meal in India. Ten people from the audience will be asked to participate on stage in the cooking of the bread.

The character of Bananaswami brings out the style of the theater of the absurd. The clown is universal and conveys the humanness of injustice, such as MASH on television conveys that quality in wartime.

After intermission the audience will be treated to Asti-Rose's film, Silent Movie, a Charlie Chaplin style film that won him the Special Jury Award, which is Canada's equivalent of the Hollywood Oscars, in 1975.

The Terrace show is the world premiere before it travels on to Vancouver, San Francisco and London, England. It will be at the R.E.M. Lee Theatre Saturday starting at 8 p.m.

Asti-Rose has written for several national magazines and has worked in Toronto as studio director of such shows as Mr. Dressup and the Friendly Giant. He has dabbled in most arts and the one-man show is ideal for him because he can teach and he likes audience participation. Last weekend he taught at an art workshop at Northwest Community College.

PYRAMID SCHEME IN THIS AREA

RCMP in the area are warning residents not to get involved in any get-rich schemes as two cases involving pyramid con games have surfaced. The police are also asking people to come forward with any information regarding such criminal activity.

The purpose of the pyramid selling is to influence people to part with their money for the promise of riches. In one local operation each person is asked to contribute $1,500 and in the second scheme the operators demand a $500 entry fee.

What really happens is that people simply lose their money.

Money is handed over to fast-talking, promise-making con artists at the top, while the people at the bottom have no hope of seeing their money again or getting a profitable return for their troubles.

The structure of the scheme is that the person is influenced to join and hand over their $1,500 and that person must influence two friends to join who must each pay $1,500. The two friends, if they join, would in turn each influence two friends until the scheme turns into a great pyramid rip-off.

Conviction for anyone conducting or managing a pyramid scheme is two years in prison; and anyone who may have lost money to such con artists is asked to contact their local RCMP office.

WEATHER

It is going to snow. There will be light snowfall this afternoon; but today's overcast skies will continue into tomorrow when the snowfall will become heavier. There is a slight risk of freezing rain in the Kitimat area; and a risk of fairly strong northeasterly winds down the valleys Friday morning, which should give poor visibility and blowing snow.

Conditions may turn warm again later.

The high today is 3 degrees Celsius and the overnight low is -5 degrees. The high Friday is 1 degree.

TERRACE COUNCIL BRIEFS

A request from the Terrace Jaycees to allow them to hold their Pacific Northwest Trades Fair in the arena this year was referred to the Parks and Recreation Commission. Because of the lack of sufficient fire exits from the floor only 400 people are allowed in that area at one time. There are 150 exhibitors at the trades fair and 1,000 people on the floor at a time for the three days it is held. That means that unless the fire exits are improved the trades fair will not be held at the arena this year.

The Jaycees are concerned because they say council could budget for improvements; but they will have to wait two weeks before they find out what the recreation committee recommends to council.

Budget requests from the Library and the Terrace and District Arts Council were also referred to the committee.

There is a dust problem in Terrace. This is something that the district is reluctant to deal with because it is winter and dusty roads are a summer-time problem. Jokes a representative from public works: "We have salt."

Council has instructed its bylaw enforcement officer to declare some areas junky because of rubbish that is laying around and causing eyesores. This year people are reluctant to start spring clean-up early because winter is not yet over and the snow may come again. Administration may work out a deal with the corrections branch to have a clean-up program started to make the community look a little neater.

...therein lies the horror

By Bruce Levett

Have they gone too far?
That there was a need for a translation machine seems beyond doubt. The human variety was creating havoc.

For instance, a soft-drink firm exported its slogan to Taiwan - Come Alive With Pepsi - only to have it emerge in the Orient as Pepsi Brings Your Ancestors
Back From the Dead.

General Motors meant to advertise Body by Fisher
but, with the help of the translators, it became Corpse by Fisher in a number of countries.

No, the time was ripe for a no-nonsense machine to do the job and Ottawa has come up with something. It took 15 years to perfect and, so far, has been used solely to translate government weather reports.

However, a shudder of apprehension is being felt in the land that, just possibly, the thing is already out of control.
Huddled deep in the bundle of leaked information is the chilling phrase "it can analyse sentences."

Therein lies the horror.
What we have here is a mechanical device
dedicated to analytic candor. The prospects are frightening.

No more will Flora
MacDonald have to frown
her brow as she asks External Affairs Minister
Mark McGuigan:

"Which of these two reports is being given tongue in cheek? Which is being stated as rhetorical?
Can the minister tell us
which of these two versions
is true?"

Flora will merely have to phone up the weather office for permission to run the puzzling statements
through the translation
machine for instance analysis.

There are still bugs to be worked out, of course, and it will take time.

As reports from Ottawa
state:

"The machine can translate only unambiguous texts employing relatively simple grammar
and a limited vocabulary, and this is likely to be the limit of its achievement for the next 10 years."

Aha - with phrases such as "simple grammar" and
"limited vocabulary," it becomes clear that it's the politicians the machine is after.

And it's that sentence
analysis bit that's intriguing.

Does this mean that no longer will a politician be able to emerge from a smoke-filled back room and dazzle us with such ponderous statements as:
"We have engaged in a meaningful dichotomy?"

Pop that into a machine
capable of instant analysis
and:

Whrrrr. Click. Buzzz.
"They voted 3-2 with one abstention for chicken salad sandwiches all around. Hold the mayo."

The next step, of course, is for mass production to put the sinister little machine into the reach of the man on the street.

"Just speak into this microphone here, dear,
and tell me where you were until 3 o'clock this morning..."

"I was sitting up with a sick friend."

Whrrrr. Click. Buzzz.
"He was out drinking with those no-goods down at the Dutchman's."

"Who programmed this thing? Your mother?"

No, mankind may not be ready for the translation machine.

On the other hand, it may be a bit early to panic.
After all, how often do those weather reports work out according to the script?

OTTAWA

by RICHARD GWYN

OTTAWA - When, in a speech in London a fortnight ago, New Brunswick Premier Richard Hatfield warned that before the constitutional crisis is done, "Canada could become a republic," reactions ranged from a mild, "unreal," by Justice Minister Jean Chretien, to editorial laughter and scorn.

More or less typically, The Toronto Star headlined its story of a second speech by Hatfield in which he repeated his warning that the monarchy might be endangered,
"Hatfield Does It Again".

One detail then unknown was that among those listening to Hatfield's second speech, although anonymously so, was the Queen's private secretary, Sir Philip Moore. Also unknown was that Moore, in a remark which since has made its way back to Ottawa, later commented to an official that he was glad Hatfield had spoken out.

This concern that the way Prime Minister Trudeau is going about changing the constitution could end up with the most fundamental constitutional revision of all - Canada's transformation from a monarchy into a republic - still does seem far-fetched.

But as more and more details of what's been going on emerge, thanks to some "mole" buried deep in the vitals of Trudeau's own office, Hatfield's worry, although still over-blown, has edged into the realm of the possible.

It's possible, for instance, that a major crisis in British-Canadian relations soon may break out. The cause of this crisis could be the refusal of the British Parliament to pass Trudeau's constitutional package. To break this deadlock, it's then entirely possible that Trudeau will resort to an election, using as his issue Britain's "colonial" treatment of Canada.

The Queen would be involved personally
because she is at one and the same time Queen of Britain and Queen of Canada. The monarchy in general would be involved because it's the most visible remaining trace of Canada's colonial past - not counting the double-decker London buses that trundle tourists around Ottawa to watch on Parliament Hill a faded trans-Atlantic echo of the Changing of the Guard.

It's now clear that Trudeau "sandbagged" British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher last June, when he got her commitment to, in effect rubber-stamp his constitutional package, he didn't then warn her of the likely extent of provincial opposition, nor of the ambitious scope of his constitutional changes which Thatcher, with "surprise," only realized last October went far beyond simple patriation to encompass, among other things, a Bill of Rights.

Since then, Trudeau has claimed that his constitutional package would be approved, quickly and automatically, by the parliament at Westminster.

Here, Trudeau has deceived Canadians.
Since November, it now turns out, he's been warned by a succession of British cabinet ministers that his constitutional package faced "appalling difficulties," in the phrase of British House Leader Sir Francis Pym.

Personality and principle seem to be at the root of these difficulties. British leaders have never been particularly impressed by Trudeau, far less so than Americans. They regard his lofty talk about North-South dialogue as pure grandstanding. Add to this the effectiveness of the provincial lobbies in London, particularly that of Quebec.

The principle at stake is that British MPs, quite unlike Canadian MPs, often vote the way they think they ought to vote rather than the way their party tells them to. Thatcher cannot deliver to Trudeau her own Conservative back-benchers, let alone the Labour and Liberal ones.

On their own therefore, British MPs have begun to re-think Trudeau's demand that they pass his constitutional package, "while holding their noses," as he put it in one of his typically infelicitous phrases. More and more British MPs have concluded that to do anything other than just to patriate the constitution, and so to leave aside the Bill of Rights, would be to interfere in a domestic Canadian, federal-provincial, squabble.

"There is a serious danger that the Canadian Parliament is being directed on a collision course with the British Parliament," British High Commissioner Sir John Ford warned at a press conference this week at which he denied accusations he had been "lobbying" New Democrat MPs to change their minds about supporting Trudeau.

Because he's near the end of his diplomatic career, Ford probably did speak less diplomatically to the NDP MPs than he should have. Much more probably, though, the Liberals seized on the issue to raise the spectre of "colonialism". (They had leaked the story to reporters before the NDP raised it in the Commons.)

By his single-minded obsession with his constitutional package, Trudeau now has enlarged his war with the provinces to a two-front one with Britain as well. Thatcher stands by her commitment, but it is far from certain that her backbenchers will say,
"Ready, Aye, Madame." A collision between these MPs and their Canadian Liberal counterparts whom you can take for granted will say "Yes Sir" to Trudeau, now is a real possibility.

'Such a fuss' from dull old Canada

LONDON (CP) - Labor MP Bruce George was denied permission Wednesday for an emergency debate in the British House of Commons on the "very critical deterioration" in Anglo-Canadian relations.

But Conservative MP Jonathan Aitken was planning to try to urge Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher during question period today to meet Prime Minister Trudeau to take some of the heat out of the Canadian constitutional debate.

Meanwhile, British newspapers continued their valiant attempts today to explain how a normally dull country such as Canada can be the source of such a fuss.

"It is a pleasant change to be able to report political machinations concerning Canada, a nation normally regarded by headline-hungry news editors as one of the most dimly unproductive corners of the earth, at least since Margaret Trudeau took flight in search of a gayer life," said one item in The Times London Diary.

The flare-up of interest has been caused mainly by reports on the leaked Telex messages concerning Ottawa were probably tapped.

The controversy over Sir John Ford, Britain's high commissioner in Ottawa, and his apparent attempts to sway a couple of NDP members away from supporting the federal government's patriation plans, also accounts for the increased interest.

The Waddes allegations of phone tapping caused "some discreet mirth" in government circles, The Daily Telegraph reported in a front-page story today.

"The Canadian constitution has hitherto been regarded as a rather sporadic issue and charting the secret course of Ottawa's strategy over its patri-ation has not been top of the list for the intelligence services," the diplomatic correspondent wrote.

The Daily Telegraph, which devoted half its front page to the constitution story Wednesday besides another story on the back page and a long editorial, scored another first today by publishing the first cartoon on the subject.

It shows Prime Minister Trudeau engaged in a log-rolling contest with British Foreign Secretary Lord Carrington.

In a front-page story, The Guardian reported that the leaking of Waddes's Telex messages to Ottawa has shaken confidence here in the authority of the Trudeau government.

"British ministers will now think twice before they commit anything to paper for transmission to Ottawa on the highly charged political issue," Patrick Keatley, the paper's diplomatic correspondent and an expatriate Canadian, reported.

The Financial Times carried a long background piece on its editorial page by its specialist on Canadian affairs, N.L. Leulkens.

Entitled Trudeau Plays It Rough, the situational concludes: "The truth of the matter is that existing law provides no unequivocal basis for proceeding or for rejecting Trudeau's ambitions."
"A political step is required, and at the moment there is no visible basis for the consensus without which such a political step could prove dangerous to the unity of Canada."

"Mr. Trudeau's determination - or his ability to change his mind on all but basic principle - must soon come into play."

Radio, television and the tabloid press have also taken an unusual interest in the story in the last couple of days.

Waddes's bugging allegations are "symptomatic of the hysteria that is bedeviling British-Canadian relations," said Conservative MP Aitken on BBC television's Newnight program Wednesday.

ODD, isn't it?

TACOMA, Wash. (AP) - The Pierce County sheriff's office was caught red-handed using a piece of missing property - a runaway supermarket shopping cart - to wheel evidence around at the County-City Building.

"It was a case of oversight," Sheriff Lyle Smith said Wednesday. "We had an identifiable piece of property that should have been delivered to the proper agency."

In fact, the county has a whole "fleet" of unclaimed carts, he said.

"If any other agency can identify their carts, they are free to come and get them," the sheriff said.
Smith said his officers called the supermarket to tell the truth about the cart after someone spotted a county employee using it.

The county got the cart after a resident asked officials to pick it up from his backyard when the food store did not retrieve it, Smith said.

Deputies simply picked up the cart, which "sort of fell into the fleet," Smith said.

DENVER, Colo. (AP) - Michael Hudson knows how man's best friend lives, authorities say. He was in a doghouse when police tracked him down.

Police following footprints in the snow from a doughnut shop that had been robbed found a man in a doghouse Wednesday. They arrested Hudson for investigation of aggravated robbery, authorities said.

A clerk in the doughnut shop reported that a man ordered doughnuts from the drive-in window, pulled a "big gun," demanded money and fled with the cash and the doughnuts, police said.
Moments later, a passing patrol car stopped at the shop and began hunting for the robber. The police did a little tracking and nabbed Hudson in the doghouse, police said.

Just how the man pressed his 6-foot-1 180-pound frame through the narrow door of the doghouse was a mystery.

CP Rail cuts ferry service

CP Rail is discontinuing its passenger ferry service between Nanaimo and Vancouver and is putting the Princess of Vancouver on the auction block, a company spokesman said Wednesday.

The 5,554-ton vessel, which carried passengers between the two harbors between May and October, will be withdrawn from service May 30, said Don Bower, regional public relations manager.

The company also is laying off 44 permanent and 36 seasonal employees involved in the run.

Declining numbers of passengers and limited freight capacity make the route uneconomical, the company said.

The government-owned B.C. Ferries Corp. has substantially increased its passenger and auto capacity this year and the CP Rail cancellation should not impair travel between mainland B.C. and Vancouver Island, said Ray Purdy, general manager for coastal marine operations.

Princess of Vancouver currently makes three round trips daily, carrying highway trailers and railcars. An extra daily sailing of the Trailer Princess, one of two other CP Rail ships on the route, plus the introduction of tug barge service will improve cargo capacity.

New military premier vows peaceful means

WARSAW (AP) — Poland's new military premier today called for a three-month moratorium on strikes and said the Communist regime has enough power to halt further disruptions by the independent union Solidarity that might lead to "fratricidal war."

He also announced another wide-sweeping government purge. "I am calling on all trade unions with an appeal: let us stop all strikes," Gen. Wojciech Jaruzelski said in his first public address since being approved by parliament Wednesday. "I am asking you for three months of honest work, 90 days of calm, to put some order in our economy. Forces of evil have been attempting to penetrate Solidarity and lead it toward false positions, anarchy and derailment of socialism. People in the new unions should not let themselves be pressured. Further destructive activities may lead to conflict and to a fratricidal war."

The premier, who delivered the televised address in full military uniform, also announced the resignations of two vice-premiers, Aleksander Kopeck and Stanislaw Kowalczyk, and their replacement with Andrzej Jedynek and Mieczyslaw Rakowski, plus changes at the top of four other government ministries. It was the sixth major purge since the summer strike wave.

Kowalczyk was an associate of Edward Gierek, the party chief ousted last September and replaced by Stanislaw Kania. Jedynek helped the government negotiate during the summer strikes. Rakowski for the last 20 years has been editor of Polityka, the party's political weekly, and is thought to be a liberal who has often taken issue with past hardline policies.

In a statement to the armed forces a few hours after parliament confirmed his appointment Wednesday as premier, Jaruzelski said he will continue as defence minister also.

"I am convinced that in the brotherhood of arms with the Warsaw pact armies, our armed forces will always fulfil the tasks which guarantee the independent socialist existence of Poland," he said.

The 57-year-old general replaced Jozef Pinkowski, who took over the government at the height of last summer's strike wave but was unable to end the labor unrest that produced the Soviet bloc's first legal unions independent of Communist party control.

Kania, submitting Jaruzelski's nomination to parliament, also stressed Poland's loyalty to the Soviet Union and thanked the Russians "for the understanding of our situation."

But in an apparent attempt to counter speculation that the appointment of a military man foreshadowed military action against the labor movement, he said Jaruzelski "always opposed actions leading to social tensions, and in (a) certain crisis he was not only an advocate but in fact a significant mainstay of the line of political settlement and agreement."

Pathologist stands firm

WHITE PLAINS, N.Y. (AP) — A pathologist remains unshaken in his opinion that Scarsdale Diet doctor Herman Tarnower was shot while warding off an attack, despite charges from Jean Harris's defence lawyer that prosecutors induced him to lie.

Assistant District Attorney George Bolen strode out of the judge's chambers in a rage when defence lawyer Joel Aurnou suggested that the witness, Dr. Louis Rob, had been suborned to perjury, or induced to lie under oath, during Harris's murder trial. "I am a human being and can take so much after five months of legal proceedings," Bolen said.

Government will cut debate on borrowing

OTTAWA (CP) — The government will cut off debate on the principle of a bill allowing it to borrow $14 billion in the 1981-82 fiscal year, Government House Leader Yvon Pinard said Wednesday.

Pinard, who must clear the legislative agenda for the looming constitutional battle, told the Commons the Liberals will invoke a rule limiting debate on second reading of the bill to one more full day.

The announcement was followed by opposition cries of "shame" and charges the Liberals were resorting to closure again to ram through legislation.

"One could not dream that this House of Commons could be so put down, so demeaned, as this government has managed to do in the last few months," said Allan McKinnon, a former Progressive Conservative cabinet minister.

The Liberals have forced an end to Commons debate four times since this session of Parliament began April 14, he noted. However, Pinard said it had become "almost traditional in the last 10 years for the opposition to force the government to use the rule allocating a deadline to the debate on legislation involving borrowing authority.

The rule can be used only if no agreement is reached among parties on when the debate should end.

By the time second-reading debate ends, the bill will have been before the House for more than seven days. It then goes to committee for study and returns to the House for third reading — final approval.

The government must have the legislation approved by April 1, when the new fiscal year begins, or it will not be able to pay its bills but the opposition has been using the debate to voice criticisms of government economic policy.

Conservatives and New Democrats object to allowing the government to borrow $14 billion when they say its Oct. 28 budget showed it only needs $11 billion.

Finance Minister Allan MacEachen has said he needs the extra $3 billion in case Canada suffers losses on foreign exchange markets.

Pinard used the time allocation rule in July to end second-reading debate on a bill authorizing the government to borrow $12 billion for the 1980-81 fiscal year, which ends March 31.

It was used again early this year to end debate on the principle of legislation giving the government sweeping power to control resource development in the Arctic and off both the east and west coasts.

Ripper suspect faces new charge

DEWSBURY, England (AP) — Truck driver Peter Sutcliffe, the man indicted last month for one of the killings blamed on the Yorkshire Ripper, is to be charged with 12 other murders and seven attempted murders, the state prosecutor said today.

The prosecutor, Maurice Shaffner, told the magistrates court the director of public prosecutions ordered him to say that further charges will be preferred against Sutcliffe before he is committed to trial.

"These further charges consist of 12 charges of murder and seven charges of attempted murder," he said. "In all there will be 20 charges of murder and attempted murder."

Sutcliffe, 35, from the northern city of Bradford, was arrested Jan. 2 in a red-light district of nearby Sheffield.

He was charged three days later the murder of Leeds University student Jacqueline Hill, who police said was one of 13 victims of a vicious killer dubbed the Yorkshire Ripper.

Police spoke jubilantly of winding down their hunt for the mass murderer, whose reign of terror in the north of England began with the killing of a prostitute in Leeds on Oct. 30, 1975.

Legal aid service in money crisis

VANCOUVER (CP) — The executive director of the Legal Services Society for B.C. says legal aid services will be cut if the B.C. government doesn't increase funding.

Brian Ralph said there will be a $1.5-million gap between last year's operating budget of 3.5 million and the $5 million necessary just to maintain the same level of service in the 1981-82 fiscal year.

"At the moment the funding prospects are not as good as we hoped they'd be," said Ralph. "There's a hold-the-line policy developing in the provincial government. And we're still fighting for our budget. I don't think it's clear yet what our final grant will be."

Neither Attorney-General Alan Williams, nor his deputy, Richard Vogel, could be reached, but Ralph said they had told him they were still trying to negotiate with the treasury board.

The Legal Services Society employs about 140 people directly and provides funds to groups which employ another 120 persons as native court workers and community law office workers, said Ralph.

The current $13.5-million operating budget for March 31 pays for legal aid programs in criminal law and family law.

"It also allows us to operate legal aid offices around the province," Ralph said. "There are 17 operated by the society itself and another 10 are funded by us but operated by community law offices."

"The budget also allows us to fund the native worker program and some legal information counsellors in native friendship centres; some public education. We grant funds to Peoples' Law School and law program for schools."

Of the $13.5 million, 1.7 million came from the B.C. government for the current year and the rest from other sources, including the Law Foundation and the federal government, said Ralph.

Frances Drake
FOR FRIDAY, FEBRUARY 13, 1981

What kind of day will tomorrow be? To find out what the stars say, read the forecast given for your birth sign.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Communications with loved ones improve, but be on guard with strangers. Accept invitations. The p.m. brings happy social life.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Stay clear of dubious financial propositions. The job offers you legitimate ways to improve income now. Take advantage of them.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) Romance is favored, but don't rush into a premature commitment. Keep your feet on the ground. P.m. favors making travel plans.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) You'll want some time for yourself now. You'll work best from a behind-the-scenes vantage point, but watch escapist tendencies.

LEO (July 23 to Aug. 22) Advantages now through friendships. In romance, though, you'll need to keep your feet on the ground. The p.m. promises happy times.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 to Sept. 22) Don't be extravagant. Career interests prosper now, but you may be concerned about the welfare or health of a family member.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) You could be extravagant in the pursuit of pleasure. Travel may lead to romance, but doublecheck schedules and reservations.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Don't betray confidences. Watch out for mix-ups with close ties over joint funds. The p.m. favors home life and pleasant times.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Don't exaggerate or promise more than you can deliver. The p.m. brings an opportunity to make new friends. Enjoy socializing.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 19) You could be overly enthusiastic about the financial potential of a project. Don't be careless on the job. P.m. brings career benefits.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 to Feb. 18) Others are prone to exaggerate. Marrieds will enjoy a romantic night on the town and singles meet with romantic introductions.

PISCES (Feb. 19 to Mar. 20) Be sceptical of speculative projects. Don't take chances now. You'll enjoy privacy at home now. Catch up on hobbies and reading.

YOU BORN TODAY are freedom loving but require a home to be content. These two qualities often conflict, with the result that at times you wish to escape responsibility. However, your Aquarian need to do something for humanity will enable you to forget yourself in service to others. It is important that you find work you like to do; otherwise, you tend to escapism. Creative and inventive, you're often drawn to the arts. You can be successful at music, designing, acting and writing. In business, you do best in a position of authority. Dear Ann Landers: Our club has a problem. She's a pushy type who insists on presenting endless programs showing slides of her travels. They are amateurish, poorly organized, and boring as hell.

One slide is in Africa (a hunter stalking an elephant), the next is a fishing expedition in the Greek Islands, then all of a sudden someone is doing a Hawaiian dance in a grass skirt. Her latest collection of mixed-up junk last almost two and a half hours.

The woman is a charter member and we don't want to offend her, but we simply can't have any more of her travelogues or no one will come to the meetings. What can be done? — Open To Suggestions

Dear Open: The program chairman must say, "One travelogue is a member." Since Mrs. Bernville has already shown her films, that should solve the problem.

Dear Ann: Our daughter just accepted an engagement ring. Now she wants a church wedding and a reception in some high-class hotel. My husband makes a good salary, but after sending this girl and her older sister to college we are BROKE.

I am against going into debt to pay for a fancy wedding, but our daughter says we should have saved for it. What shall we do? — Battling In Baltimore

Dear Bats: Tell the spoiled brat, "Sorry, we can't afford a fancy wedding. Let's talk about a ceremony and a simple reception at home or in the church, for family and close friends." End of discussion.

Are your parents too strict? Hard to reach? Ann Landers' booklet, "Sugged By Parents? How to Get More Freedom," could help you bridge the generation gap. Send 50 cents with your request and a king, stamped, self-addressed envelope to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11808, Chicago, Illinois 60611.

Dear Ann: Hisses and boos to the physician who refused to aid the ill person aboard the airliner. A hearty round of applause for the two medical students who came forward to help.

In the day of "uninvolvement" those two med students should receive your Courage of the Year Award. — Disgusted In San Antonio

Yankee catcher skips from shower to showbiz

NEW YORK (AP) — The button clicks on the recorder, and the strains of a lulling, soulful song wafts through the room:

"The snow now hides the bleachers, From the dugout's empty scene."

"But here I stand remembering when 'The infield's grass was green.'"

Frank Sinatra? Kenny Rogers? Johnny Cash? No. The crooner is Rick Cerone, the dashing young bachelor who has replaced the late Thurman Munson as catcher for the American League baseball New York Yankees.

Already involved in a wide variety of outside commercial interests, Cerone has emerged as a potential recording star.

Within the next few days, disc jockeys will be spinning a record written especially for and sung by Cerone, called A Long Run Home.

"I never sang in my life except in the shower," Cerone said. "This record just happened. The idea came last November when I was in Hartford, Conn., for a Babe Ruth League dinner."

He has asked that all proceeds go to victims of the Italian earthquake last November near home of his paternal grandparents.

RICK CERONE

...a long run

Cerone said the song is a ballad of his return to Yankee Stadium on a stormy, snowy day in mid-winter. He goes there hoping to see the face of a girl in the stands whom he had noticed during the season.

"I'm not sure why I'm drawn here now when I should be miles away. But I thought I saw her watching me in the stands against the Jays."

On the record, Cerone's voice comes across smooth as dripping honey.

"It took so long to get here, 'I guess I can't complain."

"A man must make a sacrifice, 'And it's a long run home this winter's day."

When Cerone, 26, a

.228 average hitter, was obtained from Toronto Blue Jays in November, 1979, in a trade for Chris Chambliss, he joined the Yankees under the weight of the heaviest possible pressure.

Three months before, Munson, the Yankee captain and inspirational leader, had died in the crash of his private plane in Akron, Ohio.

The Yankees were crushed. Munson was almost deified.

"Munson was a great catcher but I couldn't be caught up in his shadow," Cerone says. "I couldn't feel I was replacing anyone. I just had to be me."

Cerone said he drew inspiration and incentive from the Munson legend.

"I knew people would be watching," he explained. "If I did well, they would know it."

Cerone did more than well. He appeared in 147 games, hit .277 with 14 home runs and 57 runs batted in, second only to Reggie Jackson. He was seventh in the All-Star balloting.

And, he's still looking for that girl in the stands.

"What would the old timers think? 'If they could see me walking here?'"

"Trying to recall her face 'Instead of their great years."

"It's a long run home this winter's day."

Difference is in defence

Defence is making the difference for Houston Rockets.

Wednesday night it was San Antonio Spurs' turn to learn that lesson as Houston shut down the Spurs 106-89. It was the sixth time in the last eight National Basketball Association games that the Rockets have held their opponents under 100 points, and Houston has posted a 6-2 won-lost record in that stretch.

San Antonio, which led 56-53 at intermission, managed just 13 points in the third quarter. The Rockets went ahead to stay with a 20-4 spurt at the start of the second half and pulled away to win easily.

Bill Willoughby scored nine of his 15 points for Houston in the third quarter, when the Rockets outscored the Spurs 29-13.

In other games it was: Philadelphia 76ers 122 Cleveland Cavaliers 120 in overtime, Boston Celtics 105 Los Angeles Lakers 91, Milwaukee Bucks 107 Indiana Pacers 101, New Jersey Nets 135 Chicago Bulls 133 in overtime, Kansas City Kings 99 Utah Jazz 87 and Phoenix Suns 119 Dallas Mavericks 97.

In the best efforts during their defensive surge, the Rockets have held Atlanta to 81 points and Dallas to a mere 68. Wednesday night they permitted the Midwest Division-leading Spurs to shoot just 33 per cent from the field in the second half, outscoring them 30-21.

Moses Malone and Robert Reid scored 21 points each for Houston. Three-time scoring champion, George Gervin, was high man for San Antonio with 19, well below his 27-point average.

76ers 122 Cavaliers 120 Julius Erving grabbed a rebound of a missed shot by team-mate Darryl Dawkins and dunked it in with one second remaining in overtime to cap his 37-point effort for Philadelphia, which won its fifth consecutive game.

Cleveland's Roger Phegley had sent the game into overtime by sinking two free throws with 19 seconds left, capping a comeback from a 15-point deficit.

Cavaliere led the Cavaliers with 36 points. Celtics 105 Lakers 91 Larry Bird scored 36 points and hauled down 21 rebounds as Boston topped defending champion Los Angeles. Centre Kareem Abdul-Jabbar led Los Angeles with 32 points.

Bucks 107 Pacers 101 Milwaukee secured its Central Division lead over Indiana to 10 games, outbounding the Pacers 65-50 and putting the game away with a 12-3 spurt in two minutes midway through the final period. Junior Bridgeman scored five of his game-high 30 points in that run.

'He can play'

HONOLULU (AP) — Miller Barber is overweight, balding and closing in on his 50th birthday. He has a loth in his swing and a peculiar speaking delivery, and the respect and admiration of the man who currently holds the hottest hand in golf.

"I play practice rounds with Miller quite a lot," said Bruce Lietzke, 29, a tall, articulate man who has won twice in four starts this year. "He can play the game."

"He has my respect and admiration. In a lot of respects, I'd like to be like him."

Lietzke has a string of 14 consecutive rounds at par or better and is ranked in the $325,000 Hawaiian Open tournament that began today on the 6,881-yard, par-72 Waialae Country Club course.

"A lot of guys make fun of Miller, and I guess some of it is earned," said Lietzke. "But he won $1 million out here when $1 million was a lot of money. And the key thing is that he won at least one tournament for eight straight years. One a year for eight years."

"That's what I'd like to be able to do, win a tournament every year. I'm not exactly a goal-oriented person, but I guess you could say that's a goal for me."

Another goal is to make the 12-man Ryder Cup team which will play the best European pros in Britain this fall.

"I don't have a lock on it yet, but with two wins I have enough points that I should be able to make it without too much trouble," he said. "Another good tournament could do it."

The Hawaiian Open may be the one.

His chief opposition was expected to come from Tom Watson, golf's player of the year for the last four seasons, Lee Trevino and defending champion Andy Bean. Other standouts include Hale Irwin, Hubert Green, Lon Hinkle, Arnold Palmer and Isao Aoki, Japan's leading player.

Four Canadians also will be in the hunt for the $58,000 first prize.

Nets 135 Bulls 133

New Jersey overcame a 10-point deficit in the third quarter to win 135-133 in overtime on three-point goals by Mike Newlin and Darwin Cook in the final seconds, they outscored the Bulls 10-8 in the five-minute overtime period. Newlin led all scorers with 20 points.

Kings 99 Jazz 87

Otis Birdsong scored 20 of his 26 points in the second half as Kansas City handed Utah its 11th straight loss and ninth consecutive on the road.

Suns 119 Mavericks 97 Guards Dennis Johnson and Walter Davis combined for 18 points in the third quarter and Phoenix hit 13 consecutive shots to open a 94-75 lead going into the final period. It was the 11th straight defeat for the expansion Mavericks.

THE WORLD OF SCIENCE

Pigeons and pregnancy

Laboratory pigeons like to have some freedom of choice, according to data from a study by University of Maryland psychologist Charles Catania.

Catania placed pigeons in an apparatus which offered them small amounts of food for pecking keys. First, the pigeon had to peck one of two white keys. If it pecked the right-hand white key, four keys above it lit up, three showing red and one showing green. If the pigeon then pecked the green key, it received food.

On the other hand, if the pigeon started by pecking the left-hand white key, the keys above it lit up in a different pattern: one red key and three green ones. Then, pecking any one of the three green keys would again deliver food.

To Catania's puzzlement, the pigeons, once they had figured out the system, regularly chose to peck the right-hand white key, thus lighting up three green keys instead of just one. Pigeons are color blind and it seems unlikely that preference for seeing more "green" lights would explain why they seemed to prefer lighting up one display rather than the other. Is it possible, Catania wondered, that pigeons just like to have some choice about which green key they are going to peck, or pick?

Recently a common ingredient of Chinese cooking, mo-er, or black tree fungus, has been shown to have a marked effect on the thickness or viscosity of the blood. The fungus changes the extent to which platelets, a component of blood, aggregate or stick together. Researchers believe excess viscosity is a factor in many arteriovascular diseases.

Now two Washington, D.C., researchers report that they have isolated what is probably the active ingredient. They found that when an extract of mo-er was incubated with an enzyme which breaks down the potent anti-aggregation agent adenosine, about 80 per cent of the anti-aggregation activity of the mo-er was destroyed.

The researchers concluded that the reduction of platelet aggregation which occurs after eating Chinese black fungus and lasts up to 24 hours, is probably due to the presence of adenosine.

Use of ultrasound to identify and analyse complications in pregnancy can reduce the number of infant deaths, according to a recent study by two University of Manitoba obstetrician-gynecologists, Drs. Frank Manning and Ian Morrison.

The expected death rate for the 2,175 high-risk pregnancies they studied would have been 65 per thousand, or more than 130 among the women participating in the study. In fact, only 12 babies died between the 20th week after conception and the sixth week after birth.

Indexes such as the heart rate, reflexes, lung movements, muscle tone and general appearance of the fetus can be checked by ultrasound as well as whether the total volume of amniotic fluid is within the safe range and whether the positioning of the placenta is normal.

The accepted notion that women are, on average, more sensitive to noise than men has been supported by recent research. In the course of examining the differences between people who are bothered by noise and those who aren't, two British researchers found that the female threshold for noise discomfort was, on average, less than half that reported by men.

The 13-decibel difference between the sexes, the researchers note, was so large that it cannot be explained simply by the fact that members of the two sexes were rising to standard expectations regarding appropriate sex differences in noise sensitivity.

Reagan's son cries 'foul'

LOS ANGELES (AP) — President Reagan's eldest son, under investigation in two separate securities cases, says he did nothing wrong and contends authorities are harassing him because of his family's prominence.

No charges have been filed in either case. Municipal court documents show Michael Reagan, 35, was questioned and his home searched in connection with his gasohol venture and his role in introducing prospective investors to a man selling mining stock.

Both investigations began before Ronald Reagan was elected president.

"It's like they're trying to find me guilty of something, no matter what it is," the younger Reagan said Tuesday in an interview outside his home. "I don't believe they'd be doing this if my name was Jones."

White House press secretary James S. Brady said there would be no comment from the president, but said the investigation "is something that's being looked into." White House lawyers are not involved, he said.

Michael Reagan's home was searched Friday in connection with the investigation into Agrcultural Energy Resources, his proposed enterprise to sell equipment to convert excess or spoiled crops into gasohol. The Hollywood branch of the Security Pacific National Bank, where both Reagan and AER have accounts, also was searched.

Court documents say four men — Paul Edward Morenz, Phillip Whitworth, Bob Scullin and Bob Francis — gave Reagan a total of $17,500 last spring and summer as partial payment of $30,000 they'd agreed to invest in exchange for a 30-percent interest in AER.

In an affidavit, district attorney's investigator Laurence Hooker said the men told him Reagan said last August he'd spent the money mostly to support himself during his father's campaign for the presidency.

"The venture was never incorporated and no stock was ever issued."

Court documents show, however, that Reagan and his lawyer Sheldon Lydon, who advised the group, may have violated laws barring the sale or offer of sale of stock not registered with the department.

Reagan said Tuesday that because of the investigations his business is defunct. He has returned to his boat-selling job.

Levesque passes in laugh league

TORONTO (CP) — Peter Lougheed and Bill Davis are good for a laugh anywhere in the country. On the other hand, Rene Levesque is somewhat passe.

That, at least is, the opinion of the five-member Royal Canadian Air Farce, whose weekly radio shows and frequent concert appearances qualify them to speak on the changing trends in what tickles this country's funnybone.

"Anti-Ontario jokes are big now, even in Ontario," Canada's newest humorist province, says John Ferguson, who along with Roger Abbott, Dave Broadfoot, John Morgan and Luba Goy — "the only confirmed female member" — have been the Air Farce since 1973.

"Any hint of 'Bill Davis and Ontario, you're finally getting yours' is guaranteed success," says Ferguson. "People love any prick in this big, overblown bubble they live in Ontario."

Likewise, jokes at Alberta's Premier Lougheed are "in," because as Broadfoot points out: "People have to be frustrated with us to use them."

"Levesque is still in our show, but he's not as hot as he used to be," says Broadfoot. Now entering his 30th year as a comedian in Canada — "It's not an achievement, it's a miracle" — he is the creator of Sgt. Rennie of the Mounted, the honoree member from Kitchener Horse Pass and Bobby Clobber, the world's dimmest hockey player.
